

Classic Ford Falcon sells for record-breaking $1.3 million at auction

Melissa Meehan • aap Published: Monday, 27 September 2021 10:52 AM AEST

Loch Ness monster debate reignited after camper captures mystery figure.

A classic Ford Falcon has fetched well over $1 million at auction, setting a

“It is the pinnacle of Australian muscle cars and has consistently held its value over its lifespan since its release in 1971,” Mr Hames said in a statement on Sunday.

Also being auctioned was a collection of rare Holdens which also achieved record prices.

The Yellow Glo Ford GTHO Phase III Falcon sold at auction for $1.3 million. Credit: AAP

A 1996 Holden HSV VS GTSR sold for a whopping $1 million under the hammer while a HSV GTSR W1 sold to a Holden enthusiast for $750,000.

Hames said Holdens and Fords continue to appreciate, adding that "anything of a limited build, celebrity affiliation, significant history or chrome bumpers just keeps going up in value".